

Ground Breaking News

November 2007 Special Issue vol. 1

For a complete list of Staff

http://www.miningexcellence.ca/contact_staff.htm

CEMI welcomes new members to the Team

Orville Marcotte, Operations Manager

As part of Xstrata Nickel's commitment to the Centre for Excellence in Mining Innovation at Laurentian University, CEMI is pleased to announce that Orville Marcotte, Manager of Business Services, Xstrata Nickel Sudbury, has been seconded to CEMI where he will fill the role of Operations Manager. Orville will be responsible for the development of strategies and systems that are aligned with CEMI's objective of delivering world-class mining research of benefit to the mining industry. Orville, who joined Falconbridge as Chief Accountant, Kidd Creek, in 1986, has held various roles of increasing accountability, including Controller, Kidd Creek, before relocating back to Sudbury in 1995, as Director, Administrative Services. In his new role, Orville will serve as an adviser and implementer of financial, procurement and business initiatives focused on helping CEMI achieve success.

Harvey Buksa, R&D Program Director

As part of CVRD Inco's support for the Centre for Excellence in Mining Innovation at Laurentian University, CEMI is delighted to announce that Harvey Buksa, Chief Mine Engineer, CVRD Inco, has been seconded to CEMI as Research and Development Program Director. Harvey acts as an Industry-research liaison whose objective is to define the research need from the industry and match those needs with innovative research capacity which results in Industry focused value-adding research. Harvey joined Inco in 1975 and brings 35 years of mining experience in mine engineering and operations to CEMI. He also has several years of experience in mining research with foreign experience in both Africa and Guatemala.